THEME

Socio-Digital Transformation for the Ummah

INTRODUCTION

The theme for the International Research Invention & Innovation Exhibition for 2014 (IRIIE 2014) is Socio-Digital Transformation for the Ummah. Digital technology amongst others is perceived to be disruptive, but on the other hand it has become the equaliser, leveling the playing field. It has tremendous impact to the generation of knowledge and products in all domains of human life. The transformation brought about by the interaction between society and digital technology is far reaching. It has created new milestones. Inventions such as the social media and smartphone had been attributed to trigger and accelerate the Arab Spring – a momentous change in the middle-eastern nations.

Therefore we should harness socio-digital transformation to make technology work for the human community, thus making the world a better place. The international research community in general and the Ummah in particular must seize the opportunity to be the thought leaders, practitioners and early adopters of this inevitable transformation. For this to be realised, the researchers and practitioners must be at the forefront in knowledge generation, inventing and innovating new products. IRIIE 2014 offers an exciting international platform to showcase these noble efforts and at the same time seeks to unlock the commercial potential of the research products.

OBJECTIVES OF IRIIE 2014

- ▶ To provide an opportunity for international researchers to interact and exchange ideas
- ▶ To offer a platform to exhibit research output at global level
- ▶ To promote international collaborative research
- ▶ To expose research products to potential investors and industry partners internationally
